請依下文回答第46題至第50題：

While “Great Pacific Garbage Patch” is a term often used by the media, it does not paint an accurate picture of the marine debris problem in the North Pacific Ocean. Marine debris concentrates in various regions of the North Pacific, not just in one area. The exact size, content, and location of the “garbage patches” are difficult to accurately predict.

The name “Pacific Garbage Patch” is not visible with satellite or aerial photographs. While higher concentrations of litter items can be found in this area, much of the debris is actually small pieces of floating plastic that are not immediately evident to the naked eye.

The entire Great Pacific Garbage Patch is bounded by the North Pacific Subtropical Gyre. The circular motion of the gyre draws debris into this stable center, where it becomes trapped. While many different types of trash enter the ocean, plastics make up the majority of marine debris for two reasons. First, plastic’s durability, low cost, and malleability mean that it’s being used in more and more consumer and industrial products. Second, plastic goods do not biodegrade but instead, break down into smaller pieces. It is possible to sail through “garbage patch” areas in the Pacific and see very little or no debris on the water’s surface. Debris found in any region of the ocean can easily be ingested by marine species causing choking, starvation, and other impairments.

Cleaning up marine debris is not as easy as it sounds. Many microplastics are the same size as small sea animals, so nets designed to scoop up trash would catch these creatures as well. Even if we could design nets that would just catch garbage, the size of the oceans makes this job far too time-consuming to consider. Besides, it is not likely that any country will pay the expensive bill.

- (B) 46 What is the main idea of this passage?
 (A) The bio-diversity of Pacific Ocean. (B) A pollution that is difficult to tackle.
 (C) The decomposition of plastic products. (D) A spectacle that can be seen from satellites.
- (C) 47 Which of the following is closest in meaning to “impairments”?
 (A) Repair. (B) Extinction. (C) Damage. (D) Poison.
- (D) 48 According to the passage, which of the following statements is true?
 (A) Ships cannot sail through the Great Pacific Garbage Patch.
 (B) Plastic may be biodegraded by many different marine species.
 (C) Special huge nets are designed to scoop up the trash successfully.
 (D) Cleaning the patch may be both costly and time-consuming.
- (A) 49 According to the passage, why do plastics end up being the cause of Great Pacific Garbage Patch?
 (A) They are durable and malleable. (B) They biodegrade in a short time.
 (C) They cannot be seen with naked eyes. (D) They are difficult to correctly predict.
- (A) 50 According to the passage, which of the following can be inferred about the route through the Great Pacific Garbage Patch?
 (A) From Tokyo to Seattle. (B) From London to Rio de Janeiro.
 (C) From Shanghai to Singapore. (D) From Kaohsiung to Sydney.
